The latest at the Bandera Library

By Mauri Guillén Fagan
Bandera Library Director

The Native Plant Garden committee has scheduled a Garden Workday for Saturday, March 27, at 1 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering please call to sign up. It is BYOTAS – Bring Your Own Tools and Sunscreen. We will be getting the beds ready for spring planting. We hope you can join us!

Do you follow the Bandera Library on Facebook and Instagram? Social media is one of the easiest ways to keep on top of all the things going on at the library. Find us on Facebook at www.facebook.com/BanderaCountyLibrary and ‘like’ our page or follow us on Instagram @BanderaLibrary where we post helpful links, announcements for upcoming events, pictures and a few funny memes to help you make it through the week.

This week is a big week for popular authors. James Patterson, Dean Koontz, Stuart Woods, Jacqueline Spear, Janet Evanovich and Heather Graham all have novels coming out this week. If you have set up your library account marking any of these authors as your favorite authors, you will automatically be put on the reserve list. If not, give the library a call at 830-796-4213 and the librarians will be happy to reserve one of these new titles for you.

The Bandera Library is open Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturdays 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Curbside service is available for checkouts and business services. Free Wi-Fi is available 24/7. Check out our website www.banderacountylibrary.org for all up-to-date information. Masks are required while you are in the building.

Local history buffs and genealogy researchers will be pleased to learn the library is teaming up with the Bandera Bulletin and the Bandera Historical Commission on a large historical preservation project. The collaboration will work to digitize print newspapers going back to 1810. This will enable anyone interested in local and Texas history to search the newspapers easily. Keep an eye out here and online for updates on this important project.
Happy tales, y'all.
