Bandera's Hyo Silver had their one year anniversary and Grand Opening ribbon cutting last week at their downtown showroom located at 315 11th St. Thursday evening.

Joanne Symons, founder and president, felt the company needed a location downtown to showcase their products, rings, buckles and other jewelry.

The building, built in the 1860s, was originally a bank and after a year-long renovation is now one of Bandera's nicest buildings. The renovation was done keeping the buildings age and history in mind.

Their former showroom, located on 12th St., will now be the company's main office and headquarters.
